

ARLINGTON, VA, June 5, 2018 – OnPoint Consulting, Inc. (OnPoint), in close collaboration with its parent company, Sapiient Consulting, is excited to announce a continued partnership with the National Institute of Diabetes and Digestive and Kidney Diseases (NIDDK), a part of the National Institutes of Health. This contract provides specialized professional services to the Office of Communications and Public Liaison (OCPL) to deliver Strategic Communications and Program Management support to advance the mission of the NIDDK.

“By utilizing OnPoint’s access to the versatile CIO-SP3 vehicle, our parent company Sapiient Consulting was able to pursue and win this important work. Not only does CIO-SP3 provide a faster and easier path to procurement, but it also enables OnPoint and Sapiient Consulting to bring together our great strengths for our federal customers,” said Tim Smith, OnPoint President. The three-year, CIO-SP3 multiple award contract includes two one-year option periods, which if exercised could increase the overall potential value of the contract to $17 million.

NIDDK is the authoritative source for research and information on over 100 diseases and conditions affecting Americans today. Every year, 25 to 30 million people visit their websites for health information, research, and research funding. By supporting OCPL’s multi-channel, digital-first approach to all communication activities, this work will make a difference for millions of people who rely on NIDDK for research and information, including scientists, doctors, and patients and their families.

This win continues a successful relationship between Sapiient Consulting and NIDDK, which first began in 2012 and includes a Federal Health IT Challenge and Innovation Award nomination for Digital Engagement in 2016. Together, OnPoint and Sapiient Consulting offer complementary capabilities designed to help government evolve its operating and technology delivery model.
